

Please do not compel Internet broadband and VoIP providers to open their networks up to easy surveillance by law enforcement agencies. This is a terrible idea, not only because it illegally violates the privacy of individuals, but it will decrease security of all communications. Any kind of "backdoor" that is builtin has a good potential to be abused by terrorists and the like. The FCC should be mandating greater security for networks, not weakening them so law enforcement can abuse its authority.